Adjunct Professor/Lecturer – International Communication
Fordham University in London

Fordham University in London is seeking to appoint an adjunct professor for a level three course in International Communication (COM 3380) for the fall semester - starting on 4 September 2023 and concluding on 15 December with a study break on 23-27 October.

This introductory course to the field of international communication consists of two main blocks. First, it provides an overview of contemporary developments of global media systems and discusses general issues regarding media representation. The second half explores media systems in different countries, by focusing on news media in the UK, China and Arab World as well as entertainment industries in Asia, Latin America and Africa. It will also discuss the media systems in the era of globalisation and digital media.

Course Objectives:

- To reflect on media representation of crucial issues, such as nation, gender, race, and the global south in the context of international communication.
- To critically examine the relationships between political economic factors, media production and global media industries.
- To introduce and discuss different media systems all over the world, including Asia, Africa, Latin America and the Arab World.

Successful candidates must be experienced and effective teachers, able to cater for the diverse student body and engage students in the subject matter so that they are fully prepared for their journey through the bachelor degree. Teaching is in weekly three hour blocks. In Fall 2023, it will be taught on a Wednesday evening (1800-21 00).

Approximately 600 students study each year at Fordham London from Fordham University’s School of Arts & Science and the Gabelli School of Business.

Main Duties

- Teaching International Communication
- Preparation of teaching materials for the course
- Providing updated syllabus and course pack/reader details by the required deadline
- Providing academic advising either face-to-face or by email
- Arranging/accompanying students on co-curricular trips, and inviting guest speakers where appropriate
- Setting and administering examinations and others assessments – setting examination questions, invigilation and marketing when required
- Attendance at academic staff meetings (up to two per semester)

Required

- Masters degree or equivalent professional experience in a related field
- Relevant teaching experience in higher education and proven teaching effectiveness
- Excellent communication skills and responsive to students and the administration

Desirable
- PhD in a relevant field (or nearing completion)
- Previous experience of teaching within US higher education
- Research experience, publications and interests in the subject area

Person Specification
An individual who can develop effective working relationships with both academic and administrative staff. All applicants must be able to lawfully accept employment in the UK. If you are not a UK citizen, please address your right to work in the UK in your covering letter.

Salary
c. £4,000 plus pension contribution if eligible

The position will remain open until filled.

Application
Applicants should submit a detailed CV and covering letter to this website.

FORDHAM UNIVERSITY IS AN EQUAL OPPORTUNITY/AFFIRMATIVE ACTION INSTITUTION